NEWS from In and Out Of State

The Roosevelt Highway, U. S. Rt. 6 "might as well be given back to the Indians" if it isn't improved concurrent with the Keystone Shortway and New York's Rt. 17, Assemblyman Robert J. Flint of Coudersport said Friday.

GLOVERSVILLE — Carver Pryne, head of the Gloversville Humane Society, wishes he hadn't taken in such an eager beaver. Pryne took the animal that police had found in the city, and put it in a small lake on his property.

The beaver gnawed down six of Pryne's young willow trees, collected two cords of wood and stuffed it in the lake inlet pipe causing a flood. Pryne called a crew of workmen to take the pipe apart.

Sheriffs on horseback, bike mounted lawmen and carriage drawn constables are not unheard of, but never did a sheriff of Tioga County ride a handcar in pursuit of the wayward.

When sheriff Wayne Kelts, Elkland Pennsylvania, set out on foot to collar three Valley men last Friday afternoon he hitch-hiked a ride on a handcar and successfully completed the mission.

There are indications in some official circles in Waverly favoring re-establishment of a movement promoting the building of a swimming pool in Cayuta creek, a few feet north of the bridge over Chemung Street, Route 17.

GENEVA, N. Y. — A fisherman trying his luck on Seneca Lake landed an "oldtimer" — a 17-year-old trout tipping the scales at 22 3/4 pounds.

John Kenyon of Geneva pulled in his line and saw a tag attached to the dorsal of the fish. It was dated October 4, 1945. Records showed the fish, when placed in the lake on that date, was eight years old weighed six pounds.

The Donald Williams family, Tunkhannock, Pennsylvania, has been selected as typifying all that's best in U. S. dairy farming and will be honored by Michigan State College at its Centennial of Farm Mechanization this summer.

LAKE PLACID — The destination was a secret last Sunday when 30 sports cars set out on a "trial run" from Syracuse. Each driver carried detailed route instructions. But an anonymous typist left out one detail—where to turn off the State Thruway.

Ten arrived at the Lake Placid destination by opening sealed envelopes. Others reported by telephone from Albany and as far south as Poughkeepsie.

GLOVERSVILLE — Fifty-two honor students at Gloversville High School, nearing the end of their senior year, played hooky last Friday afternoon for a picnic at a nearby lake. They said they figured they would be kept after school a few days.

The nine boys and 43 girls were suspended for two days. Rules "apply to all students" said William E. Male, superintendent of schools.

Dogs have been raising havoc with sheep flocks in the Odessa, Burdett, Hector and Logan area during the last several weeks according to Harold DeCamp, President of the Schuler County Sheep Breeder's Cooperation.

SARANAC LAKE — Four years ago this winter sports resort held a $100-a-plate dinner and bought a $5000 snow-making machine for use on the ski slopes. The dad-blamed contraption hasn't produced a flake.

Sometimes there was too much rain. Sometimes there was plenty of snow. When it might have been used the towns-folk couldn't get it to work.

But now its chance to benefit mankind may have come. A group of farmers is dickering to buy it—for the prosaic task of spraying vegetable crops.

An impromptu campaign has been launched in Bath to return to Pulteney Park the concerts which brought wholesome enjoyment to many last summer.

The informal campaign reportedly has been touched off by voluntary contributions made by a few public-spirited persons. It's vitality hinges upon further public response.

The Penn Handle Company, Galton, Pennsylvania resumed operation Monday morning after a shutdown of nearly four weeks. Orders have started to come in, plant superintendent, William Snyder said.

Twelve Year Old Boy Artist Enjoys Painting Landscapes

To be suddenly confronted with the overwhelming reality that we are accepted by society after overcoming our weaknesses and minor handicaps while toiling arduously for that acceptance is gratifying to most human beings. Think of the gratification and joy that a seriously handicapped twelve-year-old must feel when he discovers that he is able to create something on his own that society accepts as something of merit.

Having spent most of his twelve years in near-blindness, Arnold Allen has always had to depend on others to aid him in accomplishing simple acts that other children achieve smoothly and with no thought of assistance. Now Arnold is able to achieve something so amazing that it is extremely difficult to comprehend exactly how he is able to do it.

He can produce between eight and ten drawings, depending on whether he uses oil or crayons and the size of the picture, daily. There seems to be no limit to Arnold's subject matter, but he seems to enjoy drawing trees, the heavens, maps and mountains for the most part.

The art exhibit at Addison Central School, which was Arnold's idea, displays approximately 185 of the blond youngster's drawings.

"The exhibit does not include one quarter of his work since the beginning of the school year," remarked Mrs. Doris Barre, Arnold's instructor.

Room 106 is filled with evidence of Arnold's means of expression. He is constantly drawing. There is a portion of the universe portrayed on the blackboard; the bulletin

Seven ?'s — Seven Answers Concerning Cerebral Palsy

Here are seven pertinent questions and answers pertaining to Cerebral Palsy. These questions and answers were selected from a pamphlet by the United Cerebral Palsy, 369 Lexington Ave., New York 17, N. Y.

What is Cerebral Palsy?
Cerebral palsy is a general term for a group of disorders, caused by injury to certain cells in the brain. It is neither contagious nor hereditary.

How is it caused?
By damage to brain cells, particularly those in the motor center. All of the causes are not yet known. We do know that cerebral palsy can result from faulty development of brain cells before birth, physical injury, prolonged high fever and other causes later in life. CP can happen to any one at any time, before, during or after birth.

Is there Any Cure?
No, but most of the Cerebral Palsied can be helped.

How can it be treated?
In treatment, professional teamwork is essential. Trained experts in physical, occupational and speech therapy, specialists in psychology, orthopedics, pediatrics, surgery and education help the Cerebral Palsied to attain as much correction of their muscular disabilities as is possible. This treatment involves long and patient hours of care. The cost varies from case to case, from locality to locality.

Is any improvement possible?
Yes. Within certain limits, which must be recognized from the start, there is room for much improvement. Besides crutches and braces, skillful and persistent training enables most CP's to gain a considerable measure of muscular control and coordination.

What action is called for now??
Services to the patients must be improved, quantitatively and qualitatively. For a humane conservation of human resources demands that no sufferer remain untreated. If the community provides the proper services — that means: more diagnostic clinics, better treatment centers, more educational and recreational facilities — most patients will improve. The benefits of community action must be expanded to include all needy cases. And among the neediest, in a physical and social sense, are the Cerebral Palsied.

What is the overall aim?
Not to segregate the palsied but to integrate them into our community life; to support them and to design for them a human pattern for living. If that is done, the Cerebral Palsied will find and feel a new sense of belonging. With these purposes in mind, United Cerebral Palsy, a national voluntary health agency, was founded in 1949.

Methodist Chimes Remind Citizens Of Their Donor

One of the finest gifts that has been bestowed on the people of the Village of Addison in a long time is the set of chimes which was placed on the belfry of the Methodist Church and dedicated a few days ago. These chimes were the gift of Thomas J. Watson to the church and were given as a memorial to the late Miss Jessica Turner whom Mr. Watson had as a mathematics teacher when he attended Addison High School in his youth.

They are truly a gift which all the community is able to enjoy, as well as the members of the church where they are installed. Striking the quarter hours and sounding the hours they play hymns at vespers time, filling the air with sweet melody. Although installed only a short time people are already listening for them daily.

Too few local residents realize the great industrialist received an important part of his formal education in the Addison school. As far as can be learned he has never been back to this village in 50 years. But if he has been absent in presence it is now assured there is a constant reminder here of Mr. Watson, as well as of the old teacher he sought to honor and keep green in local memory.

Frances Wilson Injured In Automobile Wreck

ADDISON — Frances Wilson, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wilson, Addison, R. D., is in Corning Hospital with fractures of the collar bone, shoulder and vertebrae.

The 1939 Oldsmobile driven by Richard Webster, 16, of R. D. 3, Addison, in which Miss Wilson was a passenger, Wednesday evening, careened off the Glendinning Creek Rd. near Presheo and rolled over five times.

Young Webster was arranged Friday for operating an unregistered motor vehicle, and for being an unsupervised driver. He was driving with a learner's permit, but was accompanied by a regular licensed driver.

Sen. Harry Morton Memorial Day Speaker at Addison Observance

State Senator Harry K. Morton of Hornell gave the Memorial Day address at Addison Monday morning. Speaking on the subject of the Cold War, Sen. Morton pointed out to his listeners that this is a war in which everyone, civilians as well as soldiers, must battle if the cause of righteousness is to win.

The address was given in Maple Cemetery after a march down Main and Front Streets, led by a color guard and the central school band. Veterans of World War I and II were in the parade, together with Scouts, American Legion Auxiliary members in cars and trucks of the Addison Fire Department.

The American Legion Auxiliary members who participated in the parade were: Miss Betty Gene Kennedy, Minnie Wade, Mabel Wright, Jean Grange, Mrs. Effie Barker, Elizabeth Martin, Ruth Brown, Hazel Bennett, Mary Hopper, Kate Travis, Lucine Comfort. The Auxiliary placed geranium plants at the sides of the honor roll.

Mrs. Edwin Chart chauffeured the Gold Star Mothers Mrs. Hattie Van Nortwick, Mrs. Stella Crane and Mrs. Alfred Dalrymple.

Marshall Elmer Bovee was master of ceremonies, and Legion Commander John Crane was assistant marshal. William J. Kennedy was officer of the day and Harry Chase was acting sergeant at arms. The opening prayer was made by Mayor Fred C. Sloum. Sgt. at arms Chase decorated the grave of the fallen comrade, Marshall Bovee introduced the speaker. The firing squad saluted the dead, the Rev. Francis H. Turner made the closing prayer and Attorney Myron Dascomb sounded taps. The echo was sounded by Glenn Gabel and the band played a hymn to close.

Senator Morton pointed out that President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles have said the United States will explore every opportunity the coming heads of state conference may afford to promote peace, freedom and justice. He said this answer to the challenge of Russia, "puts you and me into the cold war to a certain finish."

The speaker then outlined history, how the founders of our nation brought into being a land which was governed by its people; how our forefathers won a second civil war which preserved this nation and extended freedom to those who had been held in bondage in America.

"Now we have the great and challenging opportunity of winning this cold war," he said. "Winning it will bring the opportunity for freedom and justice to all the people in the world, everywhere."

"A dictatorial state is only as strong as its weakest link, and the USSR has several weak links. There is an innate spirit in every man, woman and child to want to be free. This is showing up the world over. The great Creator of the Universe gave every man equal freedom. He intended we should stay that way."

"By winning this cold war we can see that the great gains of the heroes of the past are not lost. A government by the people means a government in which the people dominate the state. A government by a great state dominating the people is just as dictatorial in consequence, as a government ruled by a single dictator."

"Everyone of us is in this cold war. It is world-wide in scope. We must win. It reaches into every area of our lives and will dominate the future of everyone. The dignity, worth and opportunities of everyone is at stake, as well as the right to worship our God and live our lives as we believe."

"Everyone of us has the opportunity of promoting democracy, freedom, his or her beliefs, and winning. We must win."

No Second Class Citizens

The long awaited decision on school segregation was handed down by the Supreme Court Tuesday, bringing mixed reactions from various parts of the country. Residents of all states north of Maryland have had no segregation problem during the memory of the oldest inhabitant, and are unable to judge the problems which this great change forces upon states where customs more than a century and a half old have to be revised.

It is notable that Oklahoma, a state considerably below the Mason-Dixon line, which was not settled until after the Civil War, announced a philosophic attitude towards the court's decision. Oklahoma will try to live up to the letter of the law and end segregation in its schools by gradual process.

Some of the "deep south" states on the other hand, have expressed open rebellion against the court. From some come rumblings that this will spell the end of the state public school system. From now onward recalcitrant states threaten to withdraw from the education picture and have the most important public function carried on entirely in private schools. However, such a course poses problems which will prove more mountainous than non-segregation. Any state which permitted its education system to lapse entirely would invite creeping paralysis of both knowledge and initiative within its borders. Soon it would find that industries and other institutions would desert it like rats leaving a sinking ship.

Non-segregation will prove a terribly bitter pill to be swallowed in states like Mississippi and Alabama, and common sense dictates that strict enforcement should be delayed until time has elapsed for mental and physical change. But in time the change will be accomplished despite the present rumblings from the south. There will be no second secession from the Union. It may take 20 years for non-segregation to be fully accomplished in some localities, but justice will eventually prevail. This country is locked in a life and death struggle with a nation dedicated to the idea it can subjugate the entire world with the communist philosophy. It is a struggle which requires we shall utilize the best talents of every American to win. There is no room for the theory of first and second class citizenship in a land which must meet this cold war challenge or become a slave state in which all of us will bow necks to a tyrant's yoke.

What of the Imprisoned Men?

Every American joined in spirit the rejoicing of the relatives of the four American flyers released this week by the Chinese Reds. It was a mental rejoicing dampened greatly by the fact that more than 50 other American boys are still held in direct defiance of international law and the pledge given our country that all prisoners would be exchanged at the time of the armistice in Korea.

Sobering is the thought the communists did not release these men from any fear of retaliation by our country for their injustice and lack of law observance. They released these men with the objective of thus smoothing down American feelings so we would withdraw opposition to the seating of Red China in the U. N., paving the way to eventual obliteration of the Chinese Nationalist government on Formosa.

The release came quickly after the Indian ambassador Krishna Menon left that secret conference in Peiping. Who knows what promises this Indian made to the Reds in his efforts to get a token release of our men? Who knows how much support of the Chiang government may have been compromised by this self-appointed arranger of our affairs?

The cold fact remains that communists, like leopards, never change their spots. They do absolutely nothing out of the goodness of their hearts, and any move which has the appearance of a change of attitude is really dictated by self-aggrandizement. It is probable our interests would have been served far better if the American fleet had clamped a tight blockade on the Chinese coast when the Reds brazenly announced they were holding these flyers.

A Hope For Labor Peace

The labor struggle which has been coming to a slow boil in the auto industry for many months has reached a climax at the Ford Motor Company plants. Walter Reuther, the tough leader of the C.I.O. auto workers union has staked the welfare of his men on the hope that Ford will yield to paying an annual wage rather than risk a big strike.

Ford countered this threat with a proposal which would permit employee participation in company profits and prosperity in general. Reuther in turn offered to have the men vote on the two alternatives with the company bound to accept their decision as final.

This is akin to asking a man accused of a crime to decide in lieu of trial by jury to choose between hanging or life imprisonment. If a prolonged strike occurs in the auto industry the harm to the entire country will far exceed any possible gain. We feel sure there is one, definite reason why Reuther would be unalterably opposed to allowing the workers to accept any such offer as Ford has made.

That reason is the fact when you permit employee participation in the profits of a company you greatly weaken the position of a union. The worker who is a partner looks at two things; his wages and his anticipated profits. If those profits promise to be considerable he is not going to vote for a strike which will endanger them. That is why the greatest tool offered an industrial leader today is to make his employees partners in the business. It may eventually prove to be the only way to put an end to long, expensive strikes that throw the entire country out of gear.

STRICTLY BUSINESS

by McFeathers

"Reach, or I'll drill you!"

June Is Dairy Month

Imagine a good cook who is deprived of her milk and cheese! How hard it would be to keep her fame as a fine cook without these two wholesome and flavorful ingredients.

But luckily, we in New York State need not face that thought, not in this year of plentiful dairy supplies. Though we are drinking more milk than a few years ago, there is still plenty to go into the manufacture of cheese and other fine dairy products.

In general, however, there is a trend toward a better balance between production and consumption on a nation-wide basis. About 2.7 million more people are eating dairy products than last year. The increasing population of our country alone makes a market for almost 1 billion quarts of milk every year, according to Agriculture Secretary Benson.

More consumers want dairy products, and we can expect that this year's consumption will at least equal that of last year. Retail milk prices are expected to be no higher this year, and in some markets may be lower.

Milk is important in everyone's diet in supplying the recommended amount of calcium and riboflavin. These are the two nutrients the largest number of Americans need in larger amounts in their daily meals.

If you are paying more for your milk than you used to, remember you get many services and conveniences delivered with each quart. Transported from cow to you in a few hours, strained and cooled, tested, inspected, pasteurized, keeping-quality improved, sealed in sterilized containers, delivered quickly and coolly to store or home, loaded, with nutritive value, and some is spiked with vitamin D, too. Milk is a bargain anyway you look at it.

Today, we spend one-fourth of our income on food, just as we did back in 1920. But we get much more for our money. Your take-home pay will buy more milk today than it did 30 years ago. One hour's earnings 30 years ago would buy 3½ quarts of milk at 14 cents a quart. Today, it buys just twice as much, or 7 quarts of milk at 24 cents a quart. Wages have increased twice as much as the price of milk.

So, during June when supplies are most abundant, let's drink more milk and eat more dairy products! It will benefit our health and will help our dairy farmer friends, too.

NEW BULLETINS FOR POULTRYMEN

Three new Cornell bulletins offer suggestions to poultry farmers on temperature and humidity control in the egg room, as well as recommendations on handling eggs.

They are: B-893, "Clean Eggs Bring More Money"; B-898, "Egg Grading and Packing Room Arrangement"; and B-920, "Build Your Own Egg Holding Room." These bulletins may be had free from county agents or from the Mailing Room, Stone Hall, Ithaca, N. Y.

Prof. Wendel Earle, poultry marketing specialist, says money spent by poultrymen for an egg holding room will soon be repaid in the sale of higher quality eggs and fewer worries during warm weather. Quality starts to decline as soon as the egg is laid, and an insulated egg holding room helps maintain the original quality.

Here are some pointers in constructing an egg room: Place it in a cool location convenient to the hen house; 2, build it to give long service; 3, insulate it well to reduce operating costs; 4, supply plenty of moisture; 5, use refrigeration equipment if size of business warrants; 6, use the egg room the year around.

Baskets of eggs should be brought to the egg holding room as soon as gathered. It is usually easier to wash them while they are still warm. Also, store 2 or three days' supply of cases, flats, and flasks in the egg room to allow them to absorb moisture. Packed eggs should be kept in the cool, moist egg room until sold.

Do You Remember?

The quilt contest at Woodhull about 1894?

The quilt contest at the M. E. Church Friday evening was a very interesting affair. The house was packed to its utmost capacity, and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves. The program was as follows:

Music by Woodhull Cornet Band. Prayer by Rev. J. L. King. Quiltette, "Sleep On", B. F. Gee, W. W. Stroud, Grace Brown, Alice Souverest.

The following persons were elected as tellers to count the votes: Willis Colvin, H. J. Mariatt, R. C. Park; recitation, "Frankie's Train", Frank Park; recitation, "Love the Old Folks", Lillian Colvin; recitation, "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star", Daisy Edwards; recitation, "She was too Fastidious", Nina Griswold.

The whole number of votes given for the quilt was 610, of which the Rev. J. W. Lyon received 215. The Rev. J. L. King 174, E. W. Hurd 139, Dr. E. E. Webster 45, the Rev. J. Wooten 22, H. Harrison 15. The amount received on the votes was $61.00, which added to $5.00 donated by H. B. Harrison, made the amount $66.00 received for the quilt.

Mr. Harrison at the beginning of the contest withdrew his name from the competition, but the 15 votes had already been given for him at the time.

On receiving the quilt which was a very beautiful silk one, the Rev. Lyon made a few appropriate remarks thanking those who had favored him with their votes.

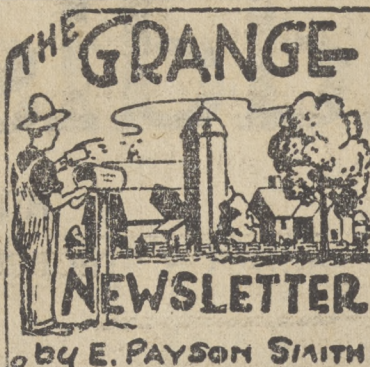

Everything connected with the competition passed off in a very satisfactory manner and every body seemed to be satisfied. Members of the Methodist Society are very grateful to those of the Baptist Society who aided them in their work of the repairs on their church by the votes given in the quilt contest.

The exercises Friday evening were of a very interesting nature and reflected much credit on those who arranged the program as well as the young folks who took an active part in the entertainment. We have no the space to speak in detail of every one of the parts, but suffice it to say there were no weak ones and several of them were of a very high order of merit.

The conundrum supper given a Mrs. J. S. Hurd's after the entertainment was well attended and $14.30 was realized together with $4.50 from the ice cream served at Mrs. L. V. Payne's at the time the quilt was set together making $18.80 which added to the money received directly on the quilt makes a total of $34.40.

Clipping of Nov. 11, 1898
The prize offered at the bundle social given last Friday evening by the young people of the M. E. Church was won by four of our young people Miss Anna Wheeler and Ed. Olin, Roe Matson and Earl Park. The prize offered was the popular book entitled "In His Steps". The committee decided to give each of the successful competitors a copy.

In mountainous Norway there is a ski jump near most towns, but only four golf courses in the whole country.

FIFTY YEARS in the natural lifetime of an individual or an organization, whether they be years devoted to the constancy of a marriage or dedicated to high purposes as in a Grange, we do well to pay tribute to such a symbolic span, a rounded figure so to speak, that we refer to as "golden" anniversary. Of the 890 Granges in New York State a great many have attained this venerable stature. Those of you who are faithful readers know, as do most Grangers, that Grange itself is now in its 89th year, and there has been an organized State Grange for 82 years, or since 1873. Tompkins county, where in flourishes 20 of our state's Granges, including the only student Grange, at the College of Agriculture, is planning a special celebration at Ithaca on June 18. The occasion is unique; as no less than eight of the county's Granges will observe their 80th Anniversary at an all-day, county-wide program. Expected to attract many hundreds of interested entertainment, speakers and a full table, traditional to Grange gatherings, will make it a gala affair. You'll all be made welcome.

PERSONALITIES of the Grange are in the news this week, as we report that State Master Leland D. Sitt has been honored by an appointment for a three-year term to the Agricultural Council of Cornell University.

Henry D. Sherwood, immediate past master of State Grange, will serve as field assistant to the State Master, according to an announcement to the Deputies. The genial former master's experience is sure to add strength to a program of state-wide Grange progress.

N. Y. S. Rural Safety Council, of which Grange is an integral part, will take an active position in Farm and Home Safety Week, scheduled for July 24-30 this year, with Mrs. Florence Pickett chairman.

WHEAT referendum, scheduled for June 25, not only here in New York, but wherever wheat is grown, will have an important effect on what Congress will do about support laws. Farmers' decisions on marketing quotas for 1956, to be determined by this vote, will have an effect on other crops as well. By all means exercise that right to vote. Lacking particular knowledge of the wheat referendum, it would be well in a discussion program were held in your Grange, open to all concerned.

The Green Thumb

BY GEORGE ABRAHAM
Naples, N. Y.

EVERGREEN NOTICE: Do your evergreens look brown at the tips? There are several reasons for this. We've had a rather hot, dry windy spring, preceded by a windy winter that resulted in "wind-burned" "winter-burned" evergreens. When the soil is low in moisture, hot dry winds on a sunny day will start up activity, removing moisture from the leaf tissues and that's why you get the "burned" effect.

Dogs will also cause evergreens to burn, especially around the bases where the foliage will turn brown-black. If you're having this type of trouble, resort to the rope repellent. This is simply a piece of rope treated with foul smelling material and all you do is wind a piece in among the evergreens. Does a fine job warding off dogs and cats. Many home owners have complained about the small tangle twigs of their yew turning brown this spring. In some cases, frost nipped the new tender growth, and in other instances the trouble is due to mechanical injury of the young growth last winter, followed by drying out of the injured twigs this spring. In other words, sometime last winter, snow and ice accumulated on the evergreen plants, and the heavy load injured the small short twigs. This damage did not become evident until after warm weather came, when the injured tissues, unable to conduct water rapidly enough, turned brown and died. This type of injury is nothing serious, and you can improve the appearance by snipping off the brown dead twigs.

POISON IVY: Watch out for this deceptive vine. It lurks around homes and barns, even growing among ornamentals. Poison Ivy is a handsome vine, being offered in nursery catalogs in England. If you have trouble identifying the pest, remember this couplet: "Leaflets three, let it be; leaflets five, let it thrive." Control: Poison Ivy can be checked by spraying with ammate weedkiller, at the rate of 1 lb. per gallon of water.

HOUSE PLANTS: If you notice clouds of a tiny insect on your plants, or on the lookout for the fly, a sucking pest that robs your plants of vigor. They hide under the foliage, making them tougher to see and fight. Control: Spray with malathion or nicotine sulfate, 1 teaspoon to a quart of soapy water. Take your plants outdoors and give them a good spraying before returning them back into the home.

Birds, Bees and Butterflies

By Maurice E. Miller

During the past week we have noticed many flocks of Eastern Yellow Warblers, the birds commonly called "Yellow Birds," or "Wild Canaries." They have bright yellow bodies and dark green wings and fly with that typical rising and dipping motion, like a boy hopping on stepping stones to cross a stream.

Seeing flocks of these beautiful little birds at this time of year is a little unusual for us and we have decided they may be birds that are stopping off briefly here on their migration journey farther to the north. These beautiful little creatures are widely dispersed over the continent and although they are designated as "Eastern," are reported as far west as the eastern side of Alaska and have been found from the tree line in the north to New Mexico in the south.

They are quite a gregarious bird, ing our gardens and open fields especially in the summer, frequenting them feeding and playing together much in July and August, showing a keen liking for the plants which come to an early seed stage. They seem to prefer little seeds of the winged, or wind-borne type and flocks will work industriously in the gardens on such vegetables as vegetable oysters, or lettuce. In the fields they will pick at the seed heads of thistles and milk weed, making a pretty sight as they balance delicately on a stalk barely strong enough to hold their weight.

One who sits quietly watching them, will be rewarded by their confidence, these pretty little fellows flitting from stalk to stalk, nearer and nearer the watcher. If one makes a sudden movement, or an intruder passes by they will swiftly dart away. But soon they gather back at the feast with renewed confidence while the male birds keep up a merry little song.

Sometimes the male joins the female in the task of building a home, but not always. Naturalists tell us the nest is started by laying a neat ring of straw in a low bush or shrub. This is shaped to the desired size and then the bird builds a nest of mud up to the top of the straw which are used to artfully weave a strong, stable nest. Often the Eastern Yellow Warbler is victimized by that greatest cheat among birds, the Cowbird. When the Yellow Warbler discovers this unwanted guest in her nest she does not toss it out as might be expected of a bird smart enough to detect an egg that does not belong to her. Rather she attempts to circumvent the nuisance. Going industriously to work she builds a second nest on top of the first, leaving the cowbird's egg to spoil in the lower story. If the Cowbird comes back and lays another egg she repeats the performance and builds another nest on top, sometimes up to four or five times. One case is on record of a six-storied Yellow Warbler nest.

Since these birds are quite tender they do not come to us until about apple blossom time and they leave in late summer or early autumn. These birds are among the most useful to the gardener and orchardist. While they are frequently seen eating early ripening seeds in the summer, they are classed as a carnivorous bird and destroy huge quantities of worms that prey upon fruit trees and garden crops. Because they are careless of human beings they will pursue their feeding on insects from morning until night even though the owners are close by them.

Among their victims are the hairless inch-worm, the fall cankerworms, and the younger and smaller caterpillars such as the gypsy moth and tent caterpillars. Since the latter are extremely widespread this spring it may be an unusual number of Eastern Yellow Warblers are staying around to feed on them.

Ice Cream And Fruit

Make Elegant Twosome

By Martha Logan

Ice cream and fruit are natural companions that make perfect summer desserts or snacks. Serve them right side up, upside down, or sandwich fashion and they're sure to make a refreshing hit.

Be adventuresome though, and do try a flavor other than vanilla in your ice cream combinations. There are many exciting fruit and nut flavored ice creams that will create real gourmet desserts.

If you own a home freezer, you'll probably find it both economical and convenient to buy the handy gallon containers of ice cream. Then you can just scoop and serve as the occasion demands. Remember though, to dip only the amount you need, because once the ice cream has been softened to a serving consistency, refreezing causes it to have a coarser texture. After dipping, smooth the top surface to remove the bumps and hollows. Experts advise keeping the surface of the ice cream in the container as level as possible. This cuts down moisture loss by minimizing the amount of surface exposed to air.

An intriguing ice cream, cake, and fruit trio that makes wonderful party or "special" fare is "Ice Cream Sponge Squares." In this combination smooth, creamy ice cream is decked with sliced peaches and sandwiched between two golden layers of cake. Powdered sugar dots the top, and the whole is garnished with fresh red raspberries. The cake may be omitted if you prefer, and

Go Easy on Bleaches

A heavy hand with the bleach bottle can make trouble on washday, according to Cornell specialist Lucille Williamson. In a recent Cornell bulletin, Home Laundering, Mrs. Williamson reminds homemakers that water with a small amount of chlorine bleach will remove nearly all stains from soiled clothes. An overdosage of chlorine bleach may weaken fabrics and make them lint in the wash water. It may even cause tears or holes.

Chlorine bleaches are sold in liquid and powdered forms. Used in moderate amounts, they do a fine job on many fabrics, but are not recommended for wools silk, and several new fabrics, particularly those with special finishes or stiffeners. For these materials, Mrs. Williamson suggests using a milder perborate bleach.

The bulletin also contains much information about other laundry supplies such as soaps, detergents, bluing, and starches, and equipment such as washers, dryers, irons, and ironers. For a free copy, write the Mailing Room, Stone Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., and ask for Home Laundering, Cornell bulletin 916.

The Best Beauty Aid

You'd be surprised to see milk being sold along with lipsticks and powder at the cosmetic counter. Yet milk is perhaps the most basic "beauty aid" any woman can have. The indispensable "make-up base" is good health, that inner foundation of well-being from which true beauty stems.

With milk and milk products so plentiful, every woman, no matter what her age, can take advantage of the essential ingredients it offers. Don't forget to include it in your regular food plan. You never outgrow your need for milk. Children should have 3 to 4 cups daily, grown-ups should drink at least 3 cups. Pregnant women need at least a quart of milk a day, and nursing mothers about a quart and a half.

More than a cake...

Those two tiny figures on top of the wedding cake . . . the bride and the groom . . . are a symbol. They mean that from this day forward two people will be as one . . . joined together in perfect unity, forming the nucleus of a new family group.

They have stood before the church altar, pledging themselves to each other and to God. Their marriage has been started in the right way, with God's blessing upon it.

In the years to come they will look back upon this day, and upon their holy moment together in the Church. They will remember the reception later when they cut this cake, when there was laughter and gaiety and nothing but love around them. When they return to their church on Sundays, they will always see in their minds' eyes their own figures, standing before the altar, taking their holy vow. Little wonder that the Church will always mean so much to them when they have laid the foundation for their happiness within it.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

—...—UNITED FEATURE PICTORIAL REVIEW—...—

DIPPING DANCER—Dancer Vera-Ellen makes a pretty splash on the Palm Springs, Calif., scene as she prepares for a dip at the Racquet Club.

SAID TO BE WORLD'S OLDEST MAN—Javier Pereira is examined by Doctors Samuel Vierira (center) and Mejia Bojanini at the San Vicente de Paul's Hospital in Medellin, Colombia. No one knows exactly how old the man is, but his age is estimated at 166 years!

THE SIMPLE LIFE—A Hutterite mother braids the hair of her young daughter at the Sturgeon Creek Hutterite Colony near Headingly, Manitoba, Canada. Some 150 men, women and children practice communal living in the colony, jointly owning all the land, machinery and livestock. They belong to one of the two main groups of the Anabaptist movement, which began in Switzerland in 1545. The other group is the Mennonites. The Sturgeon Creek Hutterites are building a similar colony at Otterbourne, Canada, and their number will be divided between the two communities. Other colonies live in South Dakota and Montana and in England and Paraguay.

BLIND BIBLE READER—Pauline Nodturt, 11, student at the New York Institute for the Education of the Blind, stands beside the 20 huge volumes of the Braille Bible, which the blind require, as contrasted to the single volume used by the sighted. Pauline was on hand to help observe the 120th anniversary of the Society's service to the blind. Since 1835, without comment or profit, the Society has furnished nearly one-half million Scriptures to the blind throughout the world.

PICK OF THE MAP—North, East, South, West—the entire map of the United States is represented in this collection of beauties, all of whom are featured in the new Magic Carpet Revue of the Dunes Hotel at Las Vegas, Nev. From back to front are: Penny Davidson, Dallas, Texas; Billie Nelson, Atlantic City, N. J.; Gloria Nygren, Minneapolis, Minn.; Patricia Gautier, Toronto, Canada; Gloria Curtis, Emporia, Pa.; Pat O'Connor, Rio Grande Valley, Texas; and Irene Rainwater, Charlotte, N. C.

CAT OR RABBIT?—No ordinary cat could sit with front paws crossed like Buddha as this one is doing at Urbana, Ill. The freak feline, which is built as much like a rabbit as a cat, is called Cabbit by its owners, the Julian Fellows family. Cabbit has only a 2½-inch tail like a rabbit, and her huge hind paws, one of which has six toes, look like those of a cottontail. The forelegs of the two-year-old have an extra joint in them, and Cabbit walks in front on her whole "forearm." With her rabbitlike legs, Cabbit half-runs, half-hops and isn't much good at escaping dogs or climbing trees. Being a rarity, she's pretty well protected anyway and spends a lot of time just sitting cross-pawed in a contemplative pose.

IN THE SHADE—Under the spreading chestnut tree the kitchen chore girl stands. When a Berlin monastery was expanded 10 years ago the nuns couldn't bear to have a 100-year-old chestnut tree destroyed. The new kitchen was built around the tree trunk, with most of the branches left outside the roof. To the delight of the nuns and the kitchen girls, the tree puts out branches and leaves inside the kitchen every year. The monastery, in the French sector of West Berlin, is occupied by the order of the Good Shepherd.

DIG THIS KID!—Most people would mind being made the goat of any celebration, but not Hans (above)—he's been a goat for so long he's used to it. He and other citizens of Lucerne are ready for their three-day Alpine Festival, May 28-30. Descendants of the Swiss families who founded the town will be strolling the streets, yodeling and otherwise singing.

RE-ENACT THEIR MEETING—Lauritz Melchior met his wife, Kleinchen, when as a motion picture star in Europe she parachuted from an airplane and landed in a tree of the garden in which he was rehearsing. To celebrate their thirtieth wedding anniversary Melchior re-enacted the meeting with the help of a little bride doll "parachuting" from a brace of balloons. The doll is adorned with a double strand of pearls, an appropriate gift since the thirtieth is the pearl anniversary.

HOLY DOGS!—It looks as if religion has gone to the dogs. Brownie, a Canadian husky, is one of the most faithful church-goers in the congregation of the Rev. Thomas Madden, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Milwaukee, Wis. The Rev. Madden adopted the dog from the street when it was four months old. The devoted dog hasn't missed a sermon, wedding or baptism for the past eight years.

SPORTS FLASHES

By The Sports Editor

WHO'S the best all-around player in either major league? If a poll were conducted, we believe B. Lemon of the Indians would be among the top 2 or 3. He can hit, run and the Indians would be among the top two or three. He can hit, run and field as well as pitch, and he has a reputation of being willing to help anyone, down to the batboy. Since he became a regular starter eight years ago, he has averaged 21 pitching victories a season. No other hurler in the same period has approached that fantastic record.

The home-run bat of Duke Snider of the Dodgers has been heard in every city in the National League so far this year. When he hit a two-run homer against Bob Hooper of the Reds May 21, he completed the cycle. The next day in Crosley Field he hit another, his 11th of the season. Out of the 11, the Phillies contributed the most — three. He had had two against the Cubs and Reds, and one each against the Giants, Pirates, Braves and Cardinals.

Down in Lake Worth, Fla., baseball gloves are going like Davey Crockett coonskins. Lake Worth is the home of Herb Score, sensational rookie pitcher of the Indians. Score's early successes this year turned his home town of 15,000 persons into a rabid baseball city. Sporting goods stores say it's had a tremendous influence on the youngsters. They've bought every available baseball glove in the town.

Ralph Kiner of the Indians is headed for a possible record this season that he won't be proud of. In his first 27 games, he struck out 23 times. If he keeps going at this rate, he'll wind up the season with 131 whiffs. The record for the American League is 121, set by Larry Doby of the Indians, in 1953.

When the Cardinals were in Pittsburgh last week, outfielders Felipe Montemayor, a Mexican, and Roberto Clemente, a Puerto Rican, let a ball hit by Stan Musial fall at their feet. Some wisecracker quipped: "There was no excuse for it; both men speak and understand Spanish."

The News learned this week that many New York fans go to the Polo Grounds just to see Don Mueller swing a bat. He plays it like a musical instrument. His hands slide up and down on the handle, depending on who is pitching and what's being pitched. When Lefty O'Doul watched him, he said, "the guy must be great; he gets those hits with half-a-bat." Mueller's recent hitting streak ended at 24 games, but that tied a New York Giant team record.

Hot dogs at 25-cents apiece are bringing growls from Kansas City fans. However, a survey of other major league parks shows that prices are about the same there as elsewhere. The concessions manager, defending his two-bit hot dogs, had an explanation this week. "Kansas City fans," said he, "aren't yet accustomed to major league prices."

Willie Mays may be a batting champion, but he looks like "anything but" to the Chicago Cubs. When Mays went hitless in eight times up against the Cubs in a May 15 double-header, it made 25 times up for him against the Chicagoans — without one hit!

Census Bureau Warns Of School Problems

"The Census Bureau warns there are now about 18 million children under the age of five who will be entering the schools in the next five years. This is a serious problem that individual communities and states will have to cope with. Some communities have already done excellent work. Dr. Brownell, commissioner of education, says, but obsolescence of school structures will require in the near future almost three times as much as at present." — Newark (N.J.) Nws.

SCIENCE at WORK

Cornell University Agricultural Experiment Station, Ithaca, N. Y.

PLENTY OF PUSH Hugh M. Wilson (above), Cornell Extension soil conservationist, forces a soil penetrometer into the ground. As the probe penetrates the soil, a pencil marks soil depth and resistance to penetration on the chart. Penetrometers give a quick and fairly accurate method of locating compact soil areas. Compacted soil won't let water drain through. Crops don't grow as well. Soil compaction can be prevented by keeping heavy machinery off wet soil, by less harrowing, and by maintaining soil organic matter. Compacted soil can be loosened by seeding it with a deep-rooted pasture crop such as birdsfoot trefoil.

Riding of Champagne Bubbles Can Be Very Hard on The Eyes

By Frederick C. Othman

WASHINGTON — You ever ride in a champagne bubble? It's hard on the eyes.

I mean a couple of automobile dealers have been at work on me trying to get my name on the dotted line for a 1955 model sedan, with power everything, and air conditioning. I want it. Nice gents. Nice cars, too.

Both of these machines were beauties. They traveled like obedient clouds. They had little men inside that wound up the windows, raised and lowered the radio aerial, moved the front seat every which way, did all the work of stepping on the brake, and even did the steering. All I had to do was nod; the dwarfs inside performed the labor.

One of these cars had a white top and hood; the rest of it was blue. I told the man I didn't know about a half-white sedan; he said it wasn't really; it was champagne bubble color.

He let me test drive this machine for a couple of days. I must report that I went snow-blind. After a session at the wheel on a sunny day I'd see red and green spots.

These sedans performed magnificently. They had engines you couldn't even hear, but which snapped your head back when you tramped on the gas. They stopped so easily and steered so gently it hardly seemed real.

They also seemed to be nearly 20 feet long. Unhappily a good deal of this length seemed to be in the form of a steel bustle, hanging out back of the rear wheels. This was fine for carrying trunks, but it wasn't so good for parking in tight places.

I tried to get one of these machines into a five-cent parking space and I never did make it because the rear overhang kept bumping into a telephone pole near the curb.

It also developed that these machines into a five-cent parking space and I never did make it because the rear overhang kept bumping into a telephone pole near the curb.
